Charlotte Price's science classes at Barth Elementary were into video production lately when they researched and presented a news program consisting of world and national news, local news, sports, weather and advertising. Students suspended Weapon found in junior high

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Two students are suspended and are awaiting hearings for allegedly bringing a sawed-off rifle into North Junior High School.

The incident occurred at approximately 9 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12, when a teacher monitoring the hallway noticed "something suspicious" occurring near a locker shared by both youths, according to police.

Apparently "afraid of outsiders", a 14-year-old student brought a .22 rifle obtained from "someone outside the building" and hid it in the locker.

The rifle was unloaded, police said.

Both youths were immediately suspended, according to assistant superintendent Terrel LeCesne.

"It was nothing major," LeCesne said. "A full investigation is ongoing and the kids were immediately taken out of school. It was definitely an isolated incident."

Both are currently released to the custody of their parents, said John Smagner, a Romulus youth officer.

Superintendent William Bedell last week told a group of parents during a board meeting that he had never processed a report of a weapon in the school.

He said Monday that the student was apparently frightened over the recent killing of a senior high student and wanted to protect himself.

Reports that the locker containing the rifle had been under surveillance for an earlier incident were unconfirmed.

Smagner said that the 14-year-old youth is currently the suspect in another gun incident before Christmas at the junior high.

That matter is before juvenile court authorities, he said.

School board hearing to determine whether the youths will be permanently suspended from school are scheduled for this week.

According to school policy, students can be suspended for up to 10 days, which is considered internal discipline.

After that time, an attorney employed by the district will act as a prosecutor and one-to-three school employees will act

Schools consider locker searches

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

The recent discovery of a sawed-off rifle in the junior high prompted an unannounced locker search that may become standard routine if the school board can eliminate the legal ramifications, according to sentiment expressed during a recent study session among board members.

The locker search, conducted Friday, Feb. 14 after two youths were suspended for hiding a rifle in one youth's locker, revealed no evidence of contraband, according to superintendent of schools William Bedell, but sporadic searches might eliminate the possibility of future incidents.

At issue is whether the district administrators can legally search a student's locker.

A school handbook outlining policy procedures, indicates that lockers are school property and subject to searches by administrators without notice.

"For our own sanity and for the folks in town, it needed to be done," Bedell said. "As you would expect, in a building of 14-15-year-olds, we found nothing."

Bedell said that a student's locker is not private property and therefore can be "periodically checked."

"But we cannot legally use anything we obtained during the first unannounced search," he explained, adding that, based upon the advice of legal counsel, to establish that lockers are not private property is the first step in continuing the practice.

Several attorneys contacted by Associated Newspapers revealed that the practice may be legal but any action could lead to litigation.

"I think lockers are the property of the school district and that we may enter from time to time," said school board member Ed Wilkerson. "We should be doing it at the high school level too and any alcohol or drugs should be turned over to the police."

Hospital authority surveys reorganization plan

By RAY DAY
ANP Staff Writer

The fate of the Wayne-based Peoples Community Hospital Authority is expected to be determined Feb. 27 at the regular meeting of the board of directors as the group votes on whether to accept a recommendation to convert the authority into a private, non-profit organization.

A Special Steering Committee created by the board last March recommended earlier this month that the authority and the five member hospitals reorganize in order to remain competitive in the health care industry. An informal survey of local representatives on the 47-member board showed overwhelming support for the proposal.

Under the key provisions of reorganization, the Authority would dismantle and would become a private, non-profit business, according to Maureen Camps, community relations director for the PCHA. This change would transfer all current assets into the hands of a new board of directors while also relieving member communities of a .2 mill tax levy. The ownership change, Camps pointed out, would not change patient services or facilities at PCHA hospitals.

The PCHA was created in 1945 under Public Act 47 of the State of Michigan. Nine communities formed the group under the provisions of a new state law to pool money and resources in order to address "poor access to health care services" in the area.

Bonds were secured at the project inception for the construction of five hospitals - Annapolis in Wayne; Beyer Memorial, Ypsilanti; Heritage, Taylor; Outer Drive, Lincoln Park; and Seaway, Trenton. Member communities were levied an up to .4 mill tax. A .2 mill tax has been collected since 1983.

Bedell reveals findings of school violence check

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Responding to a series of complaints leveled by parents during a recent school board meeting, superintendent of schools William Bedell called for several security changes in the high school, including more security guards, identifying out-of-district students and replacing old doors.

The response to the complaints was the result of parents' angered remarks chastising the school board and administration for being lax in school security following the death of Romulus High School senior Robert O'Day Jan. 31.

Bedell had promised the audience during a Feb. 10 meeting of the school board that he would personally investigate their charges of violence, drugs and alcohol use in the schools.

He found, he told board members during a study session Monday night, several incidents parents raised to be true but handled properly by school administrators.

Here is what he reported to the board:

- In response to students arriving home late after detention at school, some cases, Bedell found, parents were notified. In other cases, direct phone calls were not placed.
- Students found on school premises with weapons were expelled and hearings will be conducted to determine their status. This was in response to claims that certain students were given leniency.
- The claim by one audience member that a student attacked with a broken bottle during a football game was found to be false. Bedell said the youth was a drop-out "wandering around in front of the junior high school" during a football game. Bedell added that no one had contacted him about securing help for the youth.

- A Fact Sheet, containing information to students regarding the O'Day incident, will be discussed with the teacher who apparently read aloud certain facts to the dismay of several students who were too upset to listen.
- Out-of-district students will be identified by, if the board approves, retired administrators on an ongoing basis.
- The report of a student with an inoperable pellet gun was handed over to the police and the student reprimanded.
- Parents' charges of security guards selling drugs turned out to "nonsense", Bedell said.

Maybe it's just that Valentine's Day was "sooo romantic" that City Councilman Alan Lambert and his sweetheart, Victoria, decided to wed on that day.

Lambert and Victoria, engaged for four years, were joined in matrimony by Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally, who performed the ceremony as one of her official duties.

Lambert's wedding was one of five witnessed and performed by McAnally on the day traditionally set aside for those in love.

Lambert and his new wife, after the brief, 10 minute ceremony, headed back home to await their planned honeymoon cruise in June.

"I guess I'll have to practice being a full-time husband now, as well as a city council member," he said jokingly.

Ford seeks end to budget bill

By RAY DAY
ANP Staff Writer

Congressman William D. Ford (D-Taylor) lashed out against opposing President Reagan's new budget this week citing severe hardships the budget will cause students throughout the country.

Ford said in a statement released Monday that the new budget will eliminate or reduce student financial aid programs by almost $1.4 billion below fiscal year 1986 levels.

"The proposed budget will snuff out the candle of hope for students from low-income and working families from whom education is the route to a better life," Ford stated.

Tom Joyce, press secretary for Ford, said that the continuation of the current budget plan would be a disaster for education. Joyce explained that the budget cuts would reduce the number of student loans approved this year as well downgrade the overall quality of education for higher-education students.

The Congressman has scheduled a four-day hearing session to meet with members of the House Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, officials from many state colleges and universities as well as students from across the country in late February and early March. At the sessions, Ford hopes to be to pinpoint exactly which educational programs would be cut.

Ford continued in the same vein lashing out against the budget by applauding the recent ruling by a federal pre-judge panel that declared the key provision of the Gramm-Rudman budget act unconstitutional. The provision thrown out by the panel included one allowing the U.S. Controller General to make decisions about spending and appropriations, a duty that Joyce explained has been reserved for the Congress.

"There is no question that we need to get these terrible deficits under control. But, Gramm-Rudman is not the way to do it," Ford stated.

The Supreme Court will make the final decision on the bill's constitutionality. Joyce explained that the High Court should do this sometime in April.

Until then, however, the Gramm-Rudman act will stay in place. Ford, however, feels that the bill be again be knocked down and that Gramm-Rudman and, what he called, the disasters for education, will fall with it.

"The final word, of course, will be up to the U.S. Supreme Court. The real solution, regardless of what the high court decides, certainly is not to be found in a law as restrictive and irresponsible as Gramm-Rudman," Ford concluded.

Ford's district includes the cities of Wayne, Westland, Belleville and Romulus as well as Canton and Van Buren townships.

Childfind Video

A tomorrow solution for a today problem

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

You are reminded about it everywhere you go. You see them printed on the sides of shopping bags and milk cartons, hear about them on news reports and watch them on television documentaries.

They are the missing children of America, and now a couple of local entrepreneurs are out to help reduce their numbers.

Ron Wheeler and Ted Menter are the founders of Childfind Video, a new non-profit corporation that employs the high-tech advances of video taping to register accurate descriptions of youths and teenagers alike.

everyone was putting forth to identify and locate missing children," explained Wheeler, "and we thought, 'What better way to identify children than through the magic of television?'"

Wheeler said that current practices of photographing and fingerprinting children are adequate, but offer few of the advantages that video taping could provide.

"Photographs are only one-dimensional and they are usually two to three years old," he explained, "and fingerprints are only used to identify dead bodies."

"What we can do with video taping is more timely and more efficient. Hopefully, it will get things moving faster in iden-the recording machinery - such as "Hello," "Goodbye" and "I'm fine" - a feature that may, with the technology currently available, help in locating children through voice identification.

"One can only guess what advantages the process of voice identification will lead to in the future," he added.

The technology also currently exists to run video graphics through a process that can "age" the subject pictured by emphasizing parental trait characteristics - a key breakthrough in the effort to update old photographs.

Wheeler said Childfind Video charges $5 to tape each subject and store the tape for a 10-year period, but added that profit is

"Photographs are only one-dimensional and they are usually two to three years old and fingerprints are only used to identify dead bodies."

- Ron Wheeler

It is a company with unlimited potential for growth and income, but - perhaps more importantly - it is a company that can provide a much-needed service to the younger residents of the communities in which they live.

Wheeler and Menter, owners of a television production company, incorporated their new organization in May 1985 as a "natural outgrowth of the business" they were already conducting.

"We saw the efforts that tifying and locating missing children."

The two use video taping machines to graphically record profile and straight-on head shots of their subject, as well as a full body scan. Pertinent information graphics, such as height, weight, eye color and birthdate can also be added to the screen, thereby giving the viewer a more accurate description of the subject.

Wheeler said the process also requires that the subject say certain "catch phrases" into not the motive for their operation. "It's true that some parents can do their own video taping," said Wheeler. "But the vast majority of child abductions in this country are committed by parents, and if the abductor takes the tape with him, then what are we left with?"

Menter and Wheeler have taken their business to several school districts in the area, where the idea has been warmly received. The two decided to make schools a target area, Wheeler said, because it affords parents the opportunity to have their children participate without making a special trip.

"We have taped 388 children so far, and we hope to have two or three more school districts under contract shortly," said Wheeler, adding that individual participation runs "approximately 40-50 percent."

School districts trust their business to Childfind, he said, because they realize that the business is not a fly-by-night affair.

"Schools don't want to bother with any business that doesn't make at least a little money," he explained, "because they don't know if that company is even going to stay in business. They trust us because they know that we are building an extensive library of tapes for identification purposes, and that we will be around for a long time to come."

Wheeler said the rapidly-expanding business has not received one negative comment from those who participate and added that the company may soon work out an agreement with "the whole Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit" to video tape its students.

"We have also been approached by the Toronto School Board to start up a program up there," he sighed. "But we don't want to spread ourselves too thin right now. We want to get off the ground here before we decide to expand elsewhere."

Interested parents who wish to have their child video taped may do so by calling Childfind Video at 753-4055.

"We've checked it out and we don't know who it might be. I don't believe any one of (the security guards) did that."

Bedell reported that he could find no one connected with the alleged incident involving youths made to "crawl naked" across the gym floor.

In what perhaps was a high-lighted incident among parents during the last board meeting was that involving an alleged "cover-up" of the high school cafeteria break-in.

Bedell reassured the board that four students were originally suspended, to of whom were wrestlers, and currently, five more students, again, two wrestlers, were suspended in connection with an after-school alleged break-in into a cafeteria cooler in December.

The students, apparently waiting for a bus ride home, entered the cafeteria and "helped themselves" to soft drinks and ice cream. Fifteen to 20 students, Bedell said, were involved, but were not readily identifiable because students refused to disclose any names.

Subsequently, several students revealed the names of the alleged perpetrators, leading to the three-day suspension from school and a 30-day suspension, in the case of the wrestlers, from the team.

"To say that there was a cover-up is just ludicrous," Bedell said. "Why people would say we would cover-up a break-in into the cafeteria is beyond me."

Bedell said the district will concentrate on securing the premises of the high school with the direction of a committee of "citizens, students, board members and staff" to recommend procedures.

Two security guards, in addition to the five already employed by the district, will be added to the high school security team at a cost of $10,000 per year.

The guard shack in the high school parking lot will be relocated to the side of the building to restrict traffic flow and monitor student movement, Bedell said.

Out-of-district students, those claiming legal residences in the city but actually living elsewhere, will be traced and removed, Bedell said, at a cost of $3,000 per year in state aid per student.

Bedell reported that at least 10 students were allegedly in the district illegally. Although the school legal counsel advised that school districts must accept power of attorney from residents housing out-of-city students, the district can "make it more difficult for transfers."

Finally, in the fourth measure recommended by Bedell, the 20-to-30 year-old doors at the high school will be replaced with those locking from the inside once a student has exited.

This will help insure that traffic flow is restricted in building, he said.

"The more I talk to staff members," Bedell said, "the more I find that it's not our kids that are the problem. It's when outsiders get in...that the trouble begins."

Board members favored the improved security recommendations.

"I have no problem with this," Pat Patterson, a trustee told the board. "I personally think that the doors should lock when closed."

Other members agreed and added that name tags, one measure recommended by parents, be worn outside the student's clothing during school hours.

"Wouldn't that be common sense?" Sandra Langley asked Bedell.

"It may well come to that," Bedell answered. "But it's going to be a real headache. Students are going to forget them or lose them."

Mary King, school board treasurer, suggested providing "replacement" tags at a cost to the student if he or she arrived for classes without one.

"After a while, that kid is not

Police-sponsored dance a 'success'

A recent dance sponsored by the Romulus police unions, to benefit an officer charged with manslaughter is being touted as "highly successful" despite threats that protestors would picket the event.

Police reported no disturbances during the five-hour dance-affle sponsored to raise money for Officer James Khoury, who is currently on medical leave from the force pending his trial for manslaughter in the June 1985 death of James Hester.

"We think we did great," said Officer Eric Painter. "We raised over $13,000 with a profit of $11,000."

The money, placed into the Romulus Officers Legal Defense Fund, will be used for legal services retained by Khoury.

Police policy mandates that only criminal arraignments will be paid for by the department.

Legal fees beyond that point must be incurred by the officer, Painter said.

A state-licensed raffle attracted more than 225 people, some of whom were police officers from other departments and citizens of Romulus.

"I was surprised at the turnout," said Off. James Rafalski, coordinator of the dance. "Everything went smoothly."

Citizens protesting the event, saying that the dance should have been held outside the city limits, had promised to picket but failed to show up, Painter said.

Even WXYZ Channel 7 News was on location, apparently in anticipation of a fracas. Reporters left soon after discovering that the event would be undisturbed, Painter said.

Khoury has undergone four separate hearings at a cost to himself of approximately $19,000.

A Wayne County Circuit Court trial date is tentatively set for March.

CITY OF ROMULUS

The Annual Romulus Inoculation & License Clinic will be held Saturday, February 22, 1986 and March 1, 1986, 1:00 pm - 4:00 pm, at the old DPW building located at the corner of Shook & Bibbins, Romulus, MI.

Vaccinations to prevent rabies, distemper, hepatitis, leptospirosis, parainfluenza and parvo in dogs may be obtained. All rabies vaccinations are for three (3) years. Cat inoculations will also be available. License fees for dogs are as follows: Unneutered males & females, $5.00 one year; $9.00 two years; $13.00 for three years. Neutered animals are, $1.50 one year; $2.50 two years; $4.00 three years.

going to want to keep paying for it," she said.

Other suggestions made by parents: a camera system, regular locker checks, review of disciplinary policies, and a secret witness plan, will be examined further, Bedell said.

Student suspended; parents go to court

The parents of a high school wrestler suspended from classes following his alleged involvement in a school cafeteria break-in have filed an injunction against the school board.

The injunction, filed Friday, Feb. 14 in Wayne County Circuit Court before Judge Marvin Stempien, prohibits the school board from taking further action to prevent Jim Schlener, 16, from attending junior classes at Romulus High School or from wrestling practice or meets.

Schlener was dismissed from classes last week following the implication, by a fellow student, of his alleged involvement in the school cafeteria break-in Dec. 18.

According to superintendent of schools William Bedell, action taken against Schlener was consistent with that leveled against other alleged perpetrators of the break-in.

"I feel there's a rule that says I had to do what I did for the other boys involved and I had to do it for (Schlener)," Bedell said this week.

At least 15-20 other youths and seniors, many of them wrestlers, were involved in allegedly taking soft drinks and ice cream from the cafeteria while waiting for a school bus.

Shortly after, when several students "confessed" to the break-in, suspensions were handed down to four students, to of whom were wrestlers.

Later, Bedell said, five more students were charged, including Schlener, bringing the total to nine.

Students were suspended from classes for up to three days. Wrestlers, in addition, were suspended from play, according to team policy, for 30 days.

It was the action delivered by the wrestling coaches that angered Schlener's parents.

"I don't know why (the board and coaches) did what they did," Sandra Schlener said. "All I know is we couldn't just sit back and watch this. We had to do something."

Schlener said her son would have been prohibited from attending the District Wrestling Tournament conducted at Temperance Bedford High School in Michigan.

Her son took first place in the meet and qualified for the regional competition at Carlson High School in Gibraltar this Saturday.

"I can't believe they waited this long before issuing any punishment," she said. "How could they hold this over someone's head for this long? I think it's a pretty dirty way of doing things."

Schlener returned to school Tuesday following a Friday-Monday recess.

A hearing is scheduled Friday, Feb. 21 to determine whether will be upheld.

as hearing officers.

Parents can obtain their own lawyer for their child, Bedell said.

The hearing officers will deliver a ruling which, in effect, determines the student's status.

Charges similar to criminal charges for an adult have been leveled against the youth who brought the gun into school in addition to any school board action.

Romulus police petitioned juvenile authorities last week and are awaiting a hearing date. A third student was suspended in an unrelated incident when a security check in the parking lot of the high school revealed he had a hunting knife in the glove compartment of his vehicle.

"People are upset about the O'Day incident and everything that has ever gone wrong, they're saying is a frequent occurrence," Bedell said.

The incident prompted a locker check at the junior high Friday.

The search, conducted unannounced, revealed no weapons, drugs or "unusual" items, Bedell said.

LeCesne said that the administration would "not over-react" to the incident.

Teachers, he said, at the junior high level have not expressed their fear that students are prone to violence.

An unhealthy solution

To whom does excess tax money belong? The federal government benevolently feels that overpaid taxes should be refunded to the individuals who paid them, accounting for much joy in the early months of each year.

And even private industry has been known, sometimes due only to the interference of a regulatory agency, to step up to the surplus monies they have accumulated through levies and disburse refunds to those overcharged.

But, it would seem that the members of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority have different ideas about such funds.

A recent proposal, accepted with little comment from those members, suggests that the present structure be totally altered and the management and ownership of the hospital properties presently under the control of this group be transferred to a private, non-profit corporation, and the communities who built those facilities receive no compensation whatsoever in exchange for them.

Further, the present $33 million surplus resting in the coffers of the authority will not be returned to those communities who contributed tax money to operate and maintain the health care facilities. The money would all be in the hands of the new "corporation."

The arguments for taking some action in restructuring the present hospital authority may be sound, indeed. Perhaps the restrictions of the state governing this type of administration are cumbersome when trying to remain competitive in the health-care marketplace of today. And it is understandable that some new measures be employed in light of the competition faced by all hospitals and the lack of profits from three of the facilities.

But last year, this same board fought tooth and nail to insure that there was no sale of the properties to a Tennessee group who would have returned the $33 million surplus to the communities, and then operated the hospitals as a private corporation.

The proposal would end the .2 mill tax levy presently paid by the 24 member communities-but does not speak to any return of funds to them?

Why? Where will these excess funds go and who will control them? Will they fall into the realm of the suggested 15-member board of directors who will manage the new corporation? Will these chosen 15 be paid? The proposal indicates that the new corporation would be free to join in diverse profit-seeking ventures with the funds and resources of the health-care facility. What does that mean? Can local taxpayers expect to see their tax dollars put into enterprises that might be less than desirable for public funds?

This doesn't seem to be a good deal for the communities that we serve. While most members of the board, chosen by the administration in their respective cities, are above reproach, we would wonder at their hesitation to return this money to the people to whom it rightfully belongs. The $33 million figure, we might add, is in excess of the funding needed to run the health care properties. Our communities and our taxpayers were charged too much in tax dollars for the operation of the PCHA and that money rightfully should be returned to them if there is any question at all of restructuring the authority or changing the existing conditions in any way. It is our considered opinion that the money should have been returned to our communities when the proposal was made to do just that back in 1982.

At that time, influential members of the authority board worked hard to insure that the money remained under the control of the authority. Since that time, it has grown to the $33 million figure, although, at the time, it was argued that the reason for the non-return was debt-retirement and the threat of "losing money" at the facilities. They also were quoted as maintaining that the money was necessary for the purchase of equipment and expansion of the properties, plus debt retirement.

The equipment has been purchased, properties have been expanded, and the excess has grown by $11 million in three and one-half years.

It would appear that the present authority structure works, but if the projections for the future are correct and the need really exists for more flexibility of management and fewer restrictions, then those steps should be taken. But our communities and our taxpayers should not be penalized.

Our communities each have people in dire need of senior programs, road and civic programs, building improvements, police and fire equipment and facilities and a multitude of other municipal services. If this tax money would help provide an improved quality of life for the people who made the excess payments, then anything less than a return of those funds to them is immoral.

The last proposal to return funds was fought down by verbiage constructed to indicate that such a return was illegal and that these funds were earmarked for bond repayments and debt retirement.

That would no longer appear to be the case, as the surplus funding continues to grow at this rate. And who will "own" this new corporation? Who will control this excess tax money? Who will the "chosen" 15-member board of directors include? Each of our local legislators and the representatives they have sent to the PCHA board needs to do some serious and intense homework on this issue and, if necessary, join together to hire an outside consultant or analyst who can sift through the self-interest and agrandizement and find the truth upon which to base the vote of their community on this proposal.

They have little time, however, to do that. The issue appeared on local agendas just within the past month while the vote is slated for Feb. 27.

We would urge our local leaders to request a postponement of such a vote until a knowledgeable, unbiased and completely objective professional analysis of all the issues might be available.

By anybody's standards, $33 million is a lot of money.

flying solo

By David J. Willett, Publisher

There are many among us, it seems, who take inordinate pleasure in catching others committing some act, which in their judgment, is less than correct.

Those who are caught might be our friends, relatives, children, fellow workers, or perhaps just "them." Now "they" are people we really don't know, are not related to, have no reason to care about and, in fact, might even have reason to dislike. This is fertile ground, indeed, for playing the time-worn psychological game of "Gotcha."

If "they" are of a different race, religion, nationality, age or sex then those participating in the game can really get on a roll. We can find all sorts of wonderful faults with the manner in which "they" conduct themselves in the Middle East, South Africa, and, hey, how about those Soviets, eh? And what about those barbarians in Uganda, Iran, Libya and Afghanistan? Even our nearby neighbors in Detroit are good cannon fodder for us suburbanites.

Blacks are always great targets for whites to chip away at, and vice-versa, Catholics can be very opinionated about those Baptists, Methodists and other Protestant denominations, and the Jehovah's Witnesses are great game for just about everybody. Of course, the Jehovah's have a thought or two about the wrongdoings and ritualistic behavior of the Catholics, too.

Republicans like to zero in on the Democrats and "catch them in the act". That event is almost always followed by a slanderous verbal beating of the Grand Old Party and its card-carrying members. Democrats are, of course, no slouches when it comes to serving up barbecued Republicans.

You certainly get the idea. Our cynicism, skepticism, negativism and sharp-shooting seems pervasive in virtually every avenue of our existence. We spare none.

Let me suggest, dear readers, that life is what we make of it. If we look for the good, perhaps we will find it, as individuals, perhaps we're all half-full of good or half-empty of honesty and decency, half-full of forgiveness, Christian charity and compassion for the problems of others, or half-full of self-centeredness, selfishness and all that goes with it.

I read not so long ago about an attitude and approach to life that, if adopted by all, might make this world a far better place. The idea is to work as hard at catching people doing something right as catching them doing something wrong.

When we see others doing something we admire, respect or that touches our heart, why not try telling them so? A phone call, a quick note or a long letter, or a tap on the shoulder accompanied by a smile and a kind word to a neighbor, fellow worker or most especially a stranger does, indeed, work wonders.

There are those who invariably have a kind word, a perky smile or a pleasant retort and then there are those who are one continuous mental downer. Those mental downers of the world rarely have anything good to say to anybody. The best we can do for ourselves is to spend as little time as possible with these detractors--lest we risk drowning along with them in their poisonous venom.

The champion of all time in the "catch them doing something right" school of life is Dennis D'Arcy of the Wayne-Westland Federal Credit Union. Here's a man who signs everything he puts his name to with a smile-face cartoon, who always has a kind word, a bright smile and a positive thought.

On the other side of the coin there are people like the anonymous author of a recent note I received suggesting that "flying solo" should straighten up and fly right because our papers had not yet published an account of the sale of Unistrut to some local folks. Of course, the newspaper clip they sent was dated Thursday, and I received it on Tuesday, just as our account of the story was going to press. Alas, the disadvantage of being a weekly paper. The most troubling part of it all, however, was the cowardly lack of the individual's name.

Look friends, I sign these mental ramblings

Teacher claims schools are safe

To The Editor:

After reading your article on Robert O'Day's death and some of the comments that a select few members of our community are making concerning the safety of Romulus Junior and Senior high schools, I became very upset.

Although Bob's death was a severe tragedy to our district, I personally do not feel that it reflects in any way the situation in our fine school system. It is amazing how a tragedy brings out the vultures and the accusers who always try to lay the blame on someone. It is amazing how people try to use others' sorrow for personal gain.

Having taught in Romulus High for 14 years and Romulus Junior High this year, I can honestly say that I have never felt any danger to myself nor have I heard of or seen any "extremely dangerous" situations.

Yes, students talk tough, often mimicking adults. Yes, uidents fight, many because they are encouraged to do so at home and yes, a few students bring weapons to school, but where do they get these weapons. Who buys these knives for these young people?

The most important question may be how many weapons are there "really" in our schools. In 29 combined years of teaching in Romulus High School and the hundreds of athletic events and other activities that my wife and I have attended, neither of us has had to take a weapon from anyone. In fact, neither of us has even seen a weapon drawn on someone, let alone used. Where do these stories come from?

One thing I try to teach the young people that I have in class is that second-hand information is not always accurate and that before they react to that information they should always check first to see if it is factual.

We may not even know totally what happened on that tragic afternoon or even what may have led up to that confrontation, but we can definitely learn from it and take steps in the school and our homes to try and prevent the mentality that probably fed this incident.

Our schools are safe in spite of what a few uninformed people express in these unfounded half-truths, the parents and students who know me and my personal feelings about our

Election methods criticized

To The Editor:

There was a time when politicians lamented about voter apathy and tried to get people to get out and vote. Here in Westland we have witnessed an attempt to take advantage of that apathy, and to use it to decide a millage election.

The "pro" millage increase people, instead of organizing well-publicized and honest campaign, did everything they could to discourage, manipulate and harass the independent voter.

The best way to keep the voter turnout low is to hold a "special," single-issue election at an inconvenient or inappropriate time. (Example: on a holiday in mid-winter, or on a Saturday in the middle of summer when many are on vacation.)

Another way is to keep the election in low profile. Both our local papers did front page articles on the attempt to keep the election quiet. ("Schools try low-key style on millage vote," Westland Observer; and "Millage yawner - low turnout expected Monday," Westland Eagle.) The voters who were targeted as "yes" votes were kept informed and reminded to vote. (Examples: employees, school boosters, etc.) The rest of use were expected to stay home. Incidentally, the schools supplied phone numbers to a committee for a survey. (Many of the phone numbers were from confidential information supplied to the schools for emergency use only.) This survey was used to add names to the "yes" list of people to be targeted.

Voters who were not targeted were harassed. One woman that called to remind her friends to vote received a phone call from the principal of her child's elementary school asking her who she thought she was and telling her she had no right to make such calls. Lawyers were brought in to threaten "whoever" was responsible for passing out anti-millage information.

Did the gamble on voter apathy pay off? No! Score: Big Brother - 0, Westland voters - 2. A lesson could have been learned by studying the last two millage elections here in Westland. When the library committee tried to use the same methods as the school millage people the proposal failed. When the garbage millage proposal was presented in an honest, open way it passed.

Give the voters in this community a proposal, the information pertaining to it and encourage them to vote. Then sit back and let them decide. They may make the right decision or the wrong decision, but this is a democracy and it is their decision to make.

It is correct that the majority of voters in this community are apathetic and willing to let Big Brother make the decisions for them. The rest of us, however, refuse to be the victims of this apathy. We will continue to try to inform, involve and encourage our neighbors to protect and use their right to vote.

I applaud everyone who took the time to vote in this election, the Eagle and the Observer for attempting to inform the community and the people who worked to involve their neighbors.

every week. I appreciate knowing not only what you think, good or bad, but who you are. But I digress, enough of that. Back to the topic at hand.

By catching others in the act of doing something right and feeding our approval back to them, we reinforce their positive behavior. There are no guarantees, of course, for this modus-operandi, but it sure beats the odds on the alternative.

Perhaps if we note that our kid's room looks better now that he has performed his annual cleaning, or that the sales staff deserves and has won your gratitude and respect for a job well done, or that you appreciate your neighbor snow-blowing your walk while you were ill, such positive behavior will become infectious.

I do not suggest or recommend being a "cock-eyed optimist" or looking at the world through the proverbial rose-colored glasses. Telling people what might be better has its place and we often learn the most from negative feedback.

Yet a positive "Gotcha" can be the difference between another's having a good day or bad. Sometimes it is the difference in whether an employee chooses to work for you or not, a child continuing to listen and learn or permanently tuning you out, or in another human being's taking heart and continuing in a career, voluntary pursuit or scholastic course when they are otherwise discouraged and ready to quit.

Giving a positive "gotcha" can make their day, bring a smile, a laugh or a warm glow. Why not give it a try?

See you next week.

P.S: Hey, D'Arcy, gotcha good, didn't I?

capitol column by william keith

Salt does a good job of melting the ice on roads and highways, but, unfortunately, it also corrodes car bodies.

Auto owners are not the only ones concerned about this, so is the Michigan Department of Transportation, which has set next July as the target date for the completion of a plan to reduce the use of road salt on state highways.

Rusted auto bodies are a concern of the Legislature, too. There is already a bill in the Senate to ban the use of salt on state roads.

There have been studies which show that use of salt as a de-icer not only can be hard on motor vehicles, but also can be damaging to bridges, highways and natural resources, including drinking water supplies.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency has estimated the annual damage nationally to automobiles, roads and bridges at more than $3 million. This does not take into consideration harm to the environment and possible human health costs because of increased salt in the food chain.

Supporters of the salt ban legislation argue that hidden costs to taxpayers and consumers demand that the state eliminate or reduce the use of salt on Michigan highways.

The Department of Transportation has been moving in that direction. It reports that a task force on the problem has been exploring options and alternatives to salting, with promising results. It says that, based on preliminary investigations, the task force is confident the department can reduce salt use on state highways crushed limestone as a salt or sand substitute.

In addition to studying ways

There have been studies which show that use of salt as a de-icer not only can be hard on motor vehicles, but also can be damaging to bridges, highways and natural resources, including drinking water supplies.

over the next two years without affecting the safety of the motoring public.

Alternatives suggested by the task force include: greater reliance on abrasives, particularly sand/salt mixtures; increased use of newer, modern salt spreading equipment, with better controls on quality; improved record keeping of salt use and emphasis on training truck operators on the environmental impact of salt.

The task force also considered calcium magnesium acetate as a salt alternative, saying it has "good future potential," and is looking into to reduce or eliminate the use of salt, the task force has been working with Department of Natural Resources and Public Health on what road salting does in environmentally sensitive areas. The main concern is with drinking water supplies.

However, this part of the study has been delayed because it has been hard to find suitable sites for controlled scientific testing.

There will be salt on the roads - and cars - this winter, but the work of the Department of Transportation task force is an encouraging sign that there will be less of it in the future.

Going to the dogs . . . Sheriffs' bomb squad protects airport terminal

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

They're not as conspicuous as the mounted division but the canine unit at Metro airports sheriff's department is just as vital as their hooved counterparts.

Recently initiated by Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, the Federal Aviation Administration Canine Program is designed to replace the services once provided by the airport's own police unit prior to 1985.

Trained in sniffing out bombs, the sheriff's department unit, composed of Bronzy and Baba, a black and brown Labrador Retriever and a brown German Shepherd, respectively, had to undergo 10 weeks of training before they could be certified as bomb 'detectors.'

Not to be ignored, either, are their two trainers, Sally Wright and Bruce Preston, who, like four-year-olds Bronzy and Baba, underwent an intensive program (beginning at 5 a.m. every morning for the 10 weeks) in Texas to comprise the department certified bomb unit.

"They're like children," Wright said of the two dogs, one of whom she houses and virtually 'lives' with when not at work. "Baba has become like part of the family."

In addition to continually practicing trial runs with the animals to insure accuracy and keep them prepared, Wright and Preston take the dogs home with them every night.

The incorporation of the dogs into their own lives is a part of the training and something for which they had to agree upon before being selected as candidates for the program, Preston said.

And while their task seems easy for lack of any real bombs placed on aircraft, Wright assures that the threats are what keep both she and Preston and their dogs busy.

Coordinator Sgt. William Wadsworth, who is responsible for hiding the bomb material for the dogs to detect, said that since the inception of the program in 1985, the team has responded to five bomb threats—that is, searched aircraft ready for take-off and 37 suspicious packages at the airport.

Wadsworth added they have responded to five threats alone this year, an increase worth noting.

With a 30 minute response time, the team prides itself on being prepared to handle any bomb threat in the Metro area.

"We're not just for the airport," Wadsworth said. "We'll go anywhere anyone needs us."

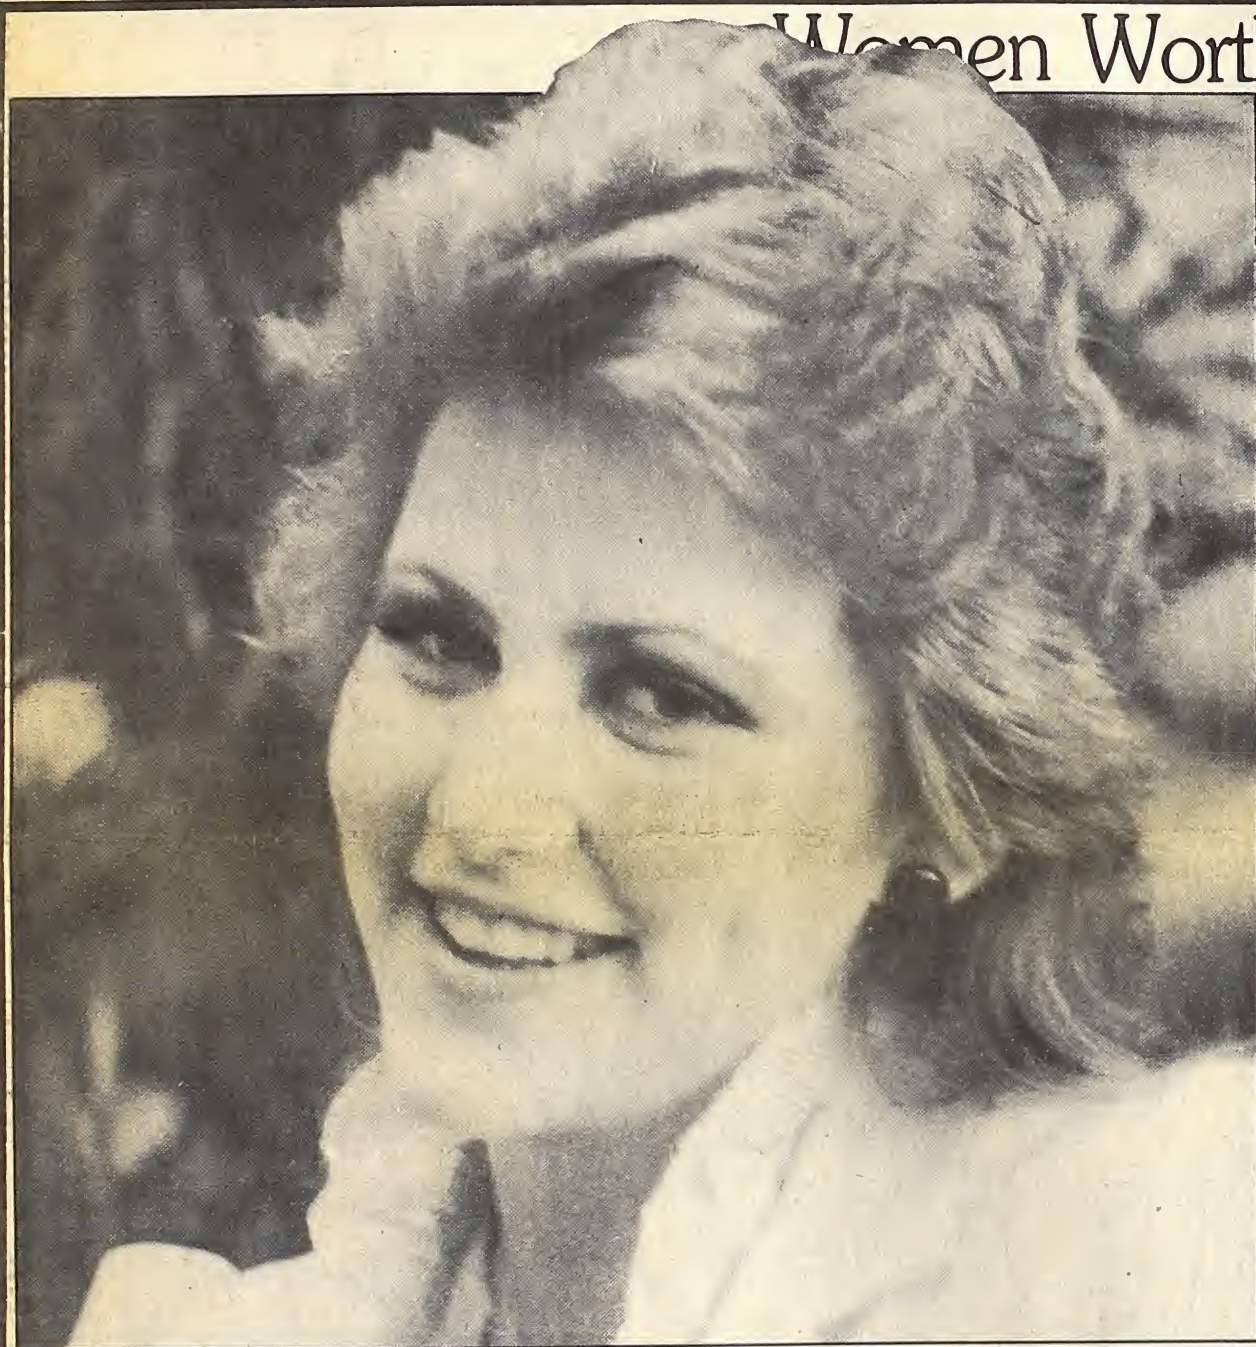

That, he said, includes various suburban police departments, schools and other areas where bombs threats have been leveled.

The procedure, demonstrated by Preston and Wright, appears deceptively simple

Bruce Preston, one of two trainers for the sheriff department's canine program, demonstrates how Bronzy, his black labrador retriever, sniffs out bombs—by following his trainer's hand until his nose detects a certain odor.

Rump roasts

Beef is so versatile.

There's a cut for every purpose — and a dozen ways to use each and every one!

Rump roasts are old family favorites, dating way back when I was a kid, (that far?) and on Sunday afternoons Mom would do a beef roast (usually rump) and the ENTIRE family would gather around the dinner table, bow our heads to say grace and then came the test to see who would take the least amount of carrots and force them down. Way back then, Mom always reminded us about the "poor starving families in Biafra."

Our family members were big beef eaters, so when it came time to cook a roast, Mom usually had Mr. Cinnamon from Cinnamon's Market (and that's the truth) cut us a "good rump" that would serve all seven of us at once and leave a little left over for Dad's evening trek to the fridge for a cold beef and gravy sandwich.

We kids couldn't believe how anyone could eat cold gravy and meat on old crusts of bread, but to Dad, it was as good as a double-dipped blue moon ice cream cone from Affholter's Dairy. Whew, excuse me, but I start remembering those great old times . . .

Needless to say, a good rump roast, roasted in a slower oven really makes an impressive meal, not to mention outstanding gravy and even better sandwiches.

The rump is a triangular piece of beef that can be purchased with or without the bone. Just as its title signifies, the rump is the rear-end hip quartered section of the steer.

A rump roast is usually sold standing on the hind bone or completely boned, rolled and tied into a delicious roast. You can figure on about 25-30 minutes of cooking time per pound when cooked in a slower 275 to 300 degree oven.

The best rump is usually purchased boned for easier carving. The cut isn't as well marbled with fat as a sirloin, short loin or flank, but when cooked in a covered roaster or Dutch oven, the meat will literally melt in your mouth.

Because of the roast benefiting from a longer cooking time at a lower temperature, rump roasts are prime candidates for crock pot enthusiasts. Those clay pot cookers also do wonders to this cut.

When using a crock pot or clay cooker, you might want to first rub a little seasoned flour mixture over the roast and brown it in a heavy skillet in about three tablespoons fat or lard on all sides. This will ensure a luscious dark, golden color and will begin a gravy or sauce that will complement not only the roast but vegetables and homemade mashed potatoes too!

Another neat trick is to use those cooking bags that are being touted on T.V. The nice thing about using a cooking bag is that when used properly, there are no messy pans and dripping to get rid of. Everything stays in the bag, no mess, no splatter! (Now, that's my idea of a hassle free dinner!)

Whatever you choose to do with your rump, whether you make an old family favorite standby with carrots, potatoes and onions, or pop it in an electric slow cooker, and let the juices do their job while you're at yours, try a rump today. Especially at the great prices now being offered by Scotty's Warehouse, 35507 Ford Road, Westland.

Bon appetit!

RUMP ROAST MILANESE

1/4 cup fat or vegetable oil
5 lbs. chuck roast
2 stalks celery, chopped
1 cup chopped carrot
2 cups chopped onion
1 clove garlic
8 potatoes, pared and halved
2 cups celery pieces
2 tps. oregano
1 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
16 oz. tomato juice
2 cups water
8 carrots, pared
2 bay leaves
1/2 tsp. basil

Heat fat or oil in a heavy kettle, brown meat on both sides, add chopped celery, chopped carrot and chopped onion and saute in kettle until golden. Crush garlic, add to kettle with the spices, tomato juice and water, cover, bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer in covered kettle for three hours or until meat is almost tender. Add remaining carrots and celery, cook for 30 minutes. Remove meat and vegetables, remove bay leaves, skim any fat off and make a gravy using one tablespoon flour for every cup of added liquid.

HOMESTYLE RUMP ROAST

7 lbs. boneless rump
2 tbsps. fat
1 large chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 can (10 oz.) condensed beef broth
1 1/2 cups water
1 tbsp. cornstarch
1 cup cooked carrots
12 small onions, peeled and cooked
1 small pkg. frozen lima beans.

Brown beef in hot fat, remove from pan, keep warm, saute chopped onion and chopped celery in remaining fat. Return meat to pot, add broth, bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer for four hours or until meat is tender. Remove meat, skim fat from liquid, blend cornstarch with a little water to a smooth paste, stir into liquid into pan and cook until it thickens. Add meat, cooked vegetables and lima beans. Heat, sprinkle with chopped parsley.

CROCK POT OR SLOW COOKER WITH A RUMP ROAST

Roll the rump in flour that has been seasoned with a little salt and pepper. Brown in about three tablespoons hot fat on all sides until brown. Place in a crock pot or slow cooker and add one can condensed beef broth, one cup dry red wine, one clove garlic, one bay leaf, one teaspoon thyme, four whole cloves, three split onions, one large cut up carrot and some freshly ground pepper. Cover and cook on the lowest setting for about eight or nine hours until meat is tender. You might want to add some freshly tender-crisp cooked vegetables at the end! The broth can be strained and a gravy can be made, if desired, using one tablespoon cornstarch for every cup of liquid.

SEASONED MARINADE FOR RUMP ROASTS

1 cup dry red wine
1/2 cup soy sauce
1/2 cup salad oil
1 bay leaf
1/2 teaspoon lemon-pepper
1 clove garlic, crushed

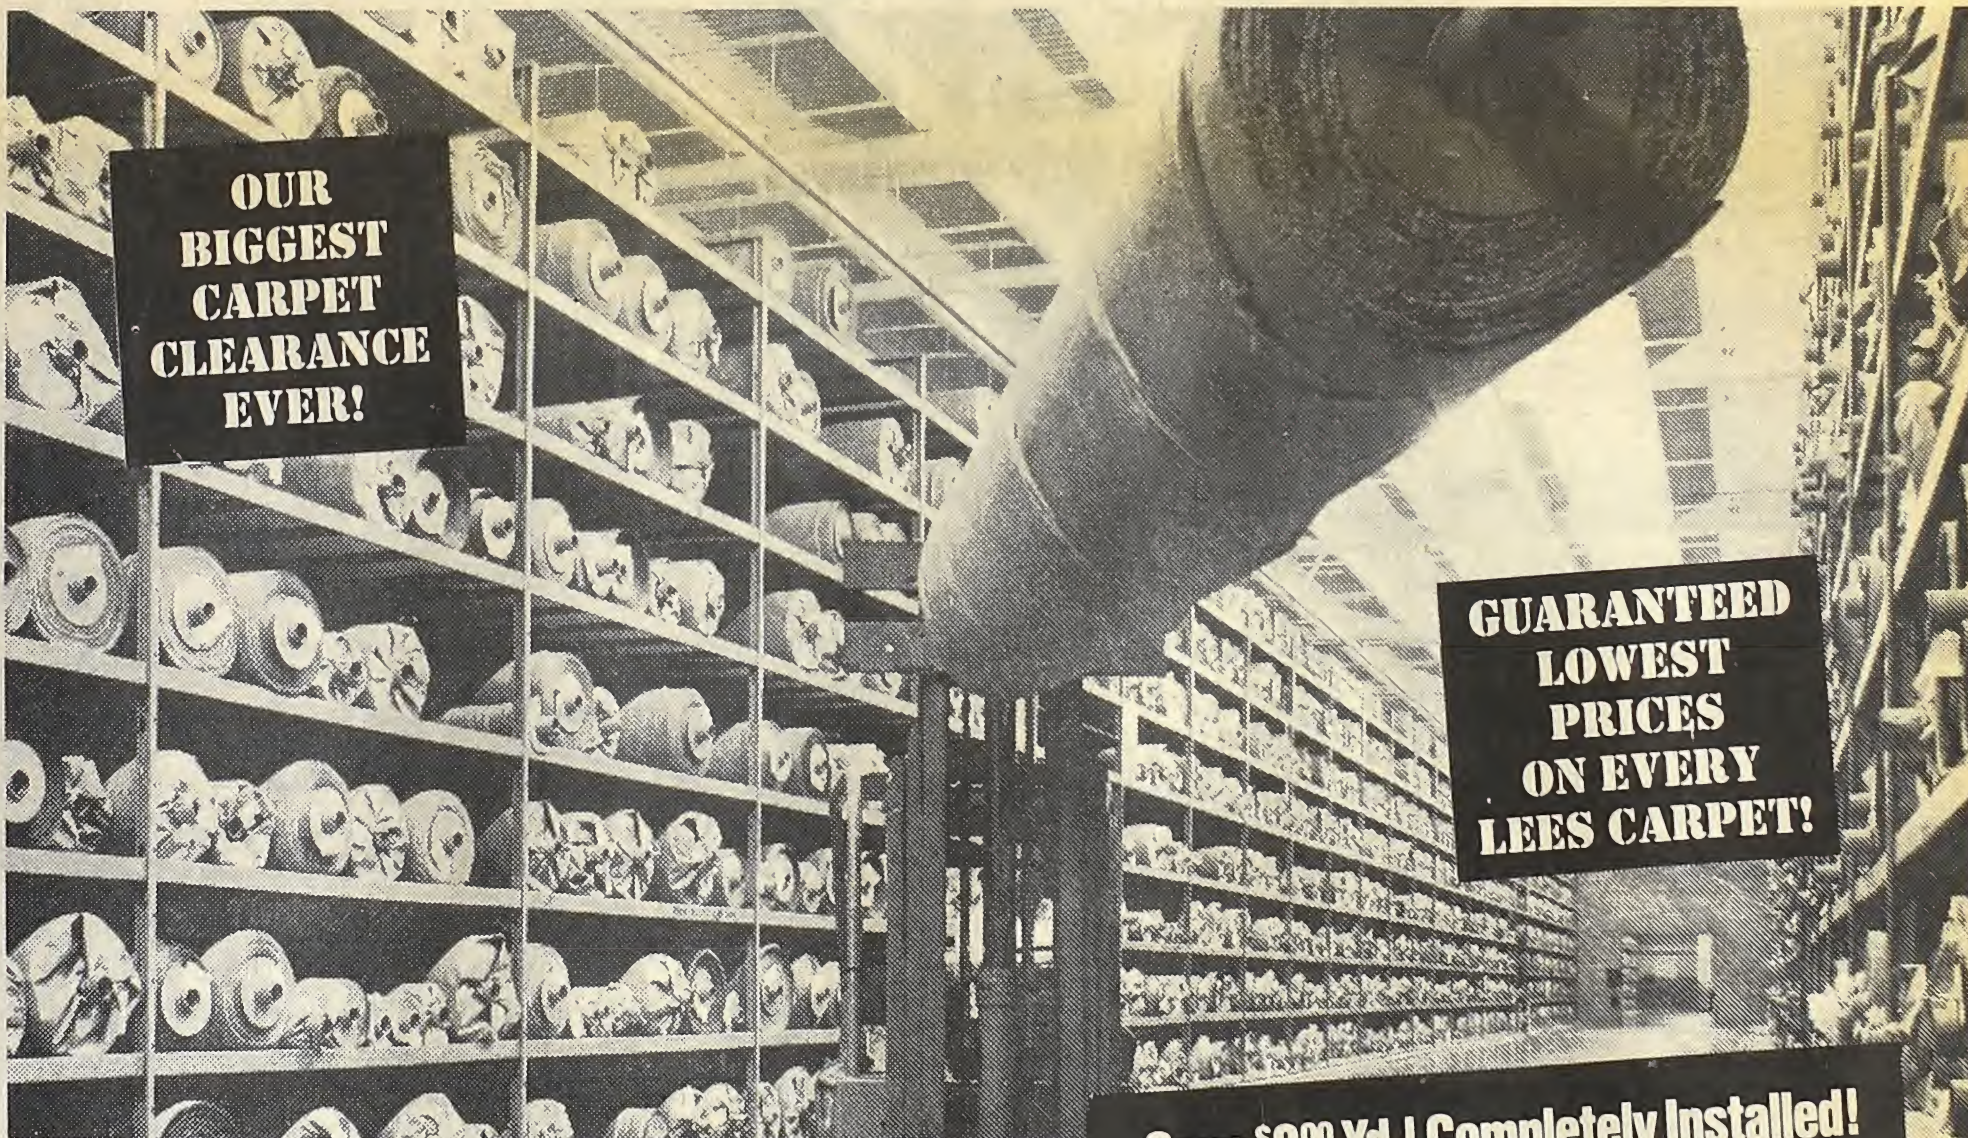

Place roast in a heavy plastic bag or covered plastic or glass container. (DO NOT use metal) add remaining ingredients and place in the fridge for at least 24 hours. Drain meat before roasting. Makes enough marinade for a 6 to 8 pound roast.

NOTE: This marinade is great for oven roasting rump roasts or using the rump in a clay pot. Add some pared and sliced carrots, onions and potatoes during the last three hours of cooking.

Pants dispute ends in death

By RALPH WELTON
ANP Staff Writer

An Inkster woman is dead and a 16 year-old girl is being held after a shooting incident at a house on Annapolis in Inkster.

The victim, 19 year-old Valerie Todd, was pronounced dead-on-arrival at the Westland Medical Center Tuesday, Feb. 4, with a gunshot wound to the chest. The shooting, which occurred around 6 p.m., was apparently the result of an argument over a pair of pants.

Tyrone Fountain, Valerie Todd's boyfriend, told police that he was in the bathroom when he heard Todd arguing with another woman that he recognized as a juvenile acquaintance of the victim. After a few words were exchanged concerning a pair of pants Todd had loaned to the suspect, says Fountain, he heard a single gunshot and emerged from the bathroom to find Todd lying on the living room floor.

Fountain told police he then chased the suspect down the street. After crossing the street, the suspect turned and aimed the revolver at Fountain, threatening to shoot if he didn't stop. Fountain began walking slowly toward her, telling her to give him the gun. The suspect pulled the trigger twice, both times hitting empty chambers in the revolver.

Fountain claims that he then wrestled the gun away from the suspect and began dragging her back to the scene of the shooting. Before reaching the scene, the girl broke free from Fountain and escaped. Fountain then returned to the house to call police and attend to his girlfriend.

According to police reports, the victim was exhibiting no vital signs when they arrived on the scene. According to investigating detective Carmen Butler, the suspect was later apprehended at her mother's home and is currently being held at the Wayne County Youth Home. The youth may be tried as an adult.

dan's dogs by dan a. morris

Those of you who believe or have been told that the dog needs his "puppyhood" before you begin training him might find that by the time you've given your dog free reign to maintain the dog's baby period you find yourself (instead of the dog) at the proverbial end-of-your-rope. You may even threaten to: 1) Get rid of, 2) strangle, 3) divorce your mate on account of, 4) have a nervous breakdown due to or 5) consider giving training, after all, to, the dog.

The next step involves finding the "right" school. The "right" school can be defined as the one: 1) closest to home, 2) with the easiest-sounding training, 3) with the "right" price, 4) with the nice-sounding person you talked to 5) with which your husband/wife agrees or 6) which makes your friends/relatives/the people next door think you're doing the right thing.

Following a tentative decision to enter the dog in training, the next move is to phone different schools.

Everyone asks about the price, first - what will be learned, last. If any problem can be solved over the phone, those questions are asked, too. (This is done either to find out if the trainer knows his business or to obtain enough training information by phone to eliminate attending classes.) Never once does the caller receive a bill for this free information. (I wonder if the same holds true should that same person call a doctor or lawyer.)

Often the caller challenges the trainer regarding his knowledge - forgetting, of course, that if he didn't know "something" he would hardly pick that field for a living. (I wonder, again, if he challenges the lawyer or doctor when he is desperate for his counsel.)

Some people become downright abusive on the phone when they hear answers about their dog they simply don't want or expect to hear. We all want an easy solution. Who wouldn't prefer using "Compound-W" instead of having that troublesome wart removed surgically? But a reputable trainer will and should tell the truth, otherwise his reputation and integrity suffers.

What all people should do when shopping for a training school is, yes, inquire about the cost. Realize, though, that you must determine if that particular price is justified by what will be learned.

Check to see how many students will be vying for the space, attention and knowledge during that hour-long session.

Visit the school to check out its cleanliness and safety. No room housing five or more dogs can be spotless but it should definitely be clean. You should feel confident that care has been taken to eliminate any possible spread of disease.

All dogs need training just as all humans need schooling. The school you choose will reflect itself in your dog by what he has learned there. Shop around, but in this case, don't settle for a bargain because you will only shortchange yourself and your dog.

For fudgsicles and beer?

I am a 27-year-old Aries, born March 26, 1958. I am single, 5 feet, 6 inches and 120 pounds. I have earned a bachelor of fine arts degree for the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, Mich. My present position is a marketing expert. My short-term professional goal is to open a retail store.

Obviously, I am a fan and have been so for quite a number of years. I sense in you some of the qualities that intrigue me in others, i.e. that you are a sincere, honest and happy person with a straightforward and direct approach to enjoying life.

I am aware of the fact that you are undoubtedly inundated with "mail" from people who admire you and that this letter may or may not reach you but, you can't blame a girl for trying.

Should you choose not to contact me, I will be disappointed because you strike me as an individual who, despite all of your obvious successes and media exposure, has been able to retain your "touch with reality."

WITH GREAT EXPECTATIONS, MB

COMMENTS:

This letter was mailed to "Tony Danza, Who's the Boss, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, CA; Universal Studios, Los Angeles, CA, and also hand-delivered by a friend to Tony's to him at a Tramps Restaurant. (Verbal verification of this hand-delivery was secured by a friend of the friend.) Thus, three attempts were made to get this letter and professional photograph in Tony's hands.

It is very hard for me to believe that MB was not contacted in any way, even if it was by way of a standard fan form-letter from Mr. Danza's staff. There is always the possibility that Tony did not receive either the two mailings or the hand-delivery, however, this seems unlikely. If he did receive one or all three, the conclusion can only be drawn that Tony Danza is not "a very friendly guy."

Canton restaurant lauded

The Roman Forum restaurant in Canton recently received American Dairy Association of Michigan's "ADAM Award." The award was created to honor restaurants and other dining places serving real dairy products including milk, butter, cheese, cream, sour cream, half-and-half and yogurt.

The ADAM Award plaque cites Roman Forum's use of real dairy products and displays American Dairy Association's "REAL" Seal, the cream, sour cream, symbol that designates genuine dairy foods as opposed to imitation dairy products.

The Roman Forum, located at 41601 Ford Road in Canton, has been serving area residents since it opened in September of 1976. American Dairy Association of Michigan commends the restaurant's "consistently high standards in food preparation and service."

Wayne teen is amateur producer

By RAY DAY
ANP Staff Writer

"Video Vox", a local-origination cable television program, may have not yet reached the cable television stardom of its professional counterpart but, producers of the show feel it has true potential.

Jerry Millen, 17, of Wayne, admits that "Video Vox" couldn't really be compared to "MTV", a national cable television show combining pop music with short concert-like performances by singers called videos, but the Wayne Memorial High School senior does feel that the show provides hands-on experience in the broadcasting and electronic communications field.

Millen started the show in summer of 1985 for what he calls a basic lack of anything better to do. After more than six months of camera, editing and on-air work, along with a considerable amount of determination, Millen now makes claim to interviews with top pop recording artists such as the "Fat Boys", "Ready for the World", "Rough Cut", "Autograph", and others.

"I wanted to get into television. I figured this would be a good way to meet people," Millen said of his reasons for starting the show. "I just wanted to work with cable. Before summer started I had a class (in film production) but there's not too much I could do equipment wise."

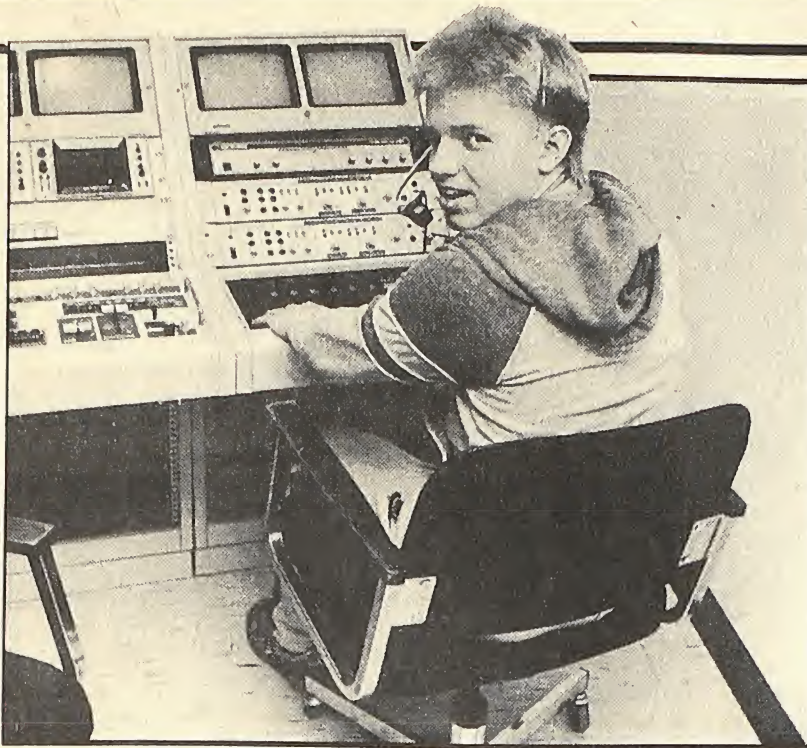

Millen's aspirations for television stardom led him into taking beginning and advanced film production classes at Wayne Memorial. Although basic film editing and production skills were emphasized in the courses, Millen reported that a lack of equipment and facilities prevented him from any hands-on experience, experience he had long been wanting.

The future Hollywood-hopeful approached officials from the local programming department at Group W Cable of Wayne. Millen was quickly set behind a camera, in front of an editing machine and eventually on the airwaves to provide him with the experience necessary to make his dreamed-of-program a reality.

The first shows were rough, Millen will admit, and he many times found himself putting in more than 18 hours for a one-hour program. The format of "Video Vox" was molded from that of MTV. The local music-video version features some of the big name videos, interviews with songwriters and an occasional spotlight on a musical production from his local high school.

To gain further insight and ideas for his own show, Millen joined the crew of "Backporch Video", another MTV spinoff produced in the studios of Group W Cable of Dearborn. Unlike "Video Vox", however, the Dearborn-based video production has earned national recognition and has attracted big-name stars as well as advertising contracts. Millen hopes that his own show can someday emulate, if not surpass, the stardom of this local rival.

Beth Farmer – James Feld exchange wedding vows

Beth Farmer, of Westland, and Joseph Feld, of Ferndale, exchanged nuptial vows Sept. 28 at the First Congregational Church of Wayne in a double-ring ceremony. The service was officiated by the Rev. Robert Millar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Farmer of Westland. Her new husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Feld of Ferndale.

The church was decorated with pink bows, pink and white floral arrangements and candleabra with pink bows. Music was provided by the bride's brother who sang and played the guitar.

The bridal costume featured a satin, white gown with lace and a hoop skirt, chapel-length train and a veil made by a friend of the bride. A wreath of silk flowers and a pearl netting descended from the hips. She also carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations, fern and baby's breath.

Participating in the ceremony were Carla Farmer, maid of honor; and bridesmaids, Diane Wyatt, Sheryl Fogarty and Terri Perry. Men in the ceremony included John Fled, best man; and ushers, Bruce Farmer, Greg Feld and Todd Farmer.

A reception attended by 150 guests followed at the Amvets Post 171 hall. The two traveled to Chicago and St. Louis for their honeymoon. The couple will make their new home in Colorado.

Beth is a 1982 graduate of John Glenn High School and is a former employee of Standard Federal Savings of Madison Heights. Her new husband is a Ferndale High School graduate and is currently serving a commission in the U.S. Army.

Millen hopes experience will help a future career

As for the future of "Video Vox", Millen hopes that increased talks and contacts with managers and recording artists will net him even more interviews with professional artists. He currently hopes to secure interviews with "The Hooters" and "Loverboy" who come to the Detroit area in early March. A long-range goal, however, would be a chat with Madonna.

"I really started getting into Madonna before I started the show. If I start to get into shows, someday my biggest interview would be with Madonna," Millen remarked. "But, that's impossible, you can't even get within 100 feet of her."

Aside from aspirations of talking with the big-time songwriters, Millen hopes that his big-time dreams and goals for the show will net him a grant from the Wayne Cable Commission. The local producer reports that he applied three months ago for $1,000 from the cable commission fund which gives monies to residents wanting to produce local cable television shows. Although he has been told by city officials that such a grant would be "no problem" for him and his program, cancellations of commission meetings and an apparent bureaucratic logjam has left the hopes of any city funding still a dream with a questionable fate.

Beyond the high costs of video tapes, building a set and paying for long-distance phone bills incurred from interviews, Millen reported that the second biggest need of the show is people. The high school senior said that keeping a steady crew on hand is difficult since no one is paid down the road, the aspiring television starlight has visions of making it big in the industry. A local video jockey now, maybe someday an actor, Millen uses the successes and failures of those that have gone before him

"If I start to get into shows, someday my biggest interview would be with Madonna, but that's impossible, you can't even get within 100 feet of her."

– Jerry Millen

for his efforts.

"It's really hard to keep people to do it because they don't get any money out of it," said Millen. "But, it's good experience."

As for his own future, Millen's interests lie in the television industry, although which aspect of it he is still unsure. After graduation, his plans are to attend the University of Southern California to major in mass communications, that is if he is able to secure a scholarship good enough to send him there. A second choice would be Michigan State University.

Wherever he finally ends up in college, Millen knows that his Detroit-area days are numbered.

"You're not going to become famous out of Michigan," he said. "I'm going to have to head out to L.A."

L.A. next year or sometime to light the road to fame and fortune in the show-biz world. Someday, though, he's sure that "Video Vox" and the experience earned from the show will enable him to expand beyond his current goal of an interview with Madonna.

"This is all experience for the future hopefully. Someday I really want to go into movies. Some of the bands I've interviewed have made movies," Millen commented. "Hopefully in the future this will all pay off. If it comes down to it, at least I can be a disc jockey."

Anyone interested in working with the crew of "Video Vox" may phone Millen through Group W Cable at 729-1960. Other aspiring producers who would like to learn about public access and how to produce their own show should call the local programming department of their local cable company.

Belleville tankers closing in on league title

With Greg Lynch setting pool and varsity records in the 200-yard freestyle, Belleville trounced Fordson 56-26 in a Wolverine 'A' Conference dual swim meet last week.

Belleville carded nine of the 11 first places with Lynch also winning the 100-yard breaststroke and anchoring the winning 400-yard freestyle relay.

Lynch turned in a 1:48.16, the best ever time for the Tiger varsity and pool in the 200-yard freestyle. Teammate Wally Rochowiah placed third in the event with a 2:01.32. Lynch's winning time for the 100-yard breaststroke was a 1:04.20. He beat teammate Mike Ackron to the wire. Ackron was clocked in 1:07.61.

Lynch teamed with Matt Stoelton, Eric Snider and Jeff Thompson for a 3:29.68 to give the Tigers the 400-yard freestyle.

Belleville also placed the best medley relay team in the pool thanks to the efforts of Dave Traskos, Mike Ackron, Martin Duda, and John Kapitan who were clocked in 1:49.83.

Belleville continued its domination on the diving boards with Raul Estrada earning a first place with 223.20 points. Teammate Troy Pierce finished third with 197.15. The Tigers also chalked up a first with Martin Duda who was clocked in the winning time of 1:00.70 in the 100-yard butterfly, while Joe Bongiorad finished third (1:10.83) in the event. Matt Stoelton and Jeff Thompson finished first and third in the 100-yard freestyle. The winning time was posted as 52.65.

Dan Fancher's contribution to the winning cause was a second place in the 500-yard freestyle (5:36.33).

Among the top freestylers the school has produced, senior Greg Lynch (above) has been instrumental in Belleville's drive for the Wolverine "A" Conference swim title this season. Lynch helped the Tigers overcome a key obstacle last week in their chase for the league title, winning three events - one in record-shattering time - against Dearborn Fordson. Lynch's 1:48.16 established a new pool and varsity record for the 200 freestyle. That time also qualified him for the state finals.

Playoffs are next

Over 30 hockey teams buckle up for stretch

With one week remaining in the regular season, the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey teams are gearing up for the post-season playoffs.

But, before the playoffs get underway, Metro Stamp and Jake's Lounge will have to settle their title differences in the Berrington Division. Both are jammed atop of the league standings and before they break for the playoffs, one will wear the crown.

In the meantime, Little Bill's Trophies sealed the championship in the Bonkowski Division.

Metro Stamp has beaten Jake's Lounge two out of three outings, therefore, Jake's is forced into a "must win" situation.

Jake's applied the pressure on Metro Stamp as Jake's skated to a 4-3 victory in its last game. Mark Tominak tallied for one goal and picked up two assists. John Rogin, Bob Jones, and Dave Zajac accounted for a goal apiece. John Colligan and Jim O'Gozaly finished with one assist each.

Metro Stamp's Joel Layne scored two goals and also accounted for one assist. Mark Santoni also tallied. Larry Kaifesh picked up one assist.

Mark DeRoche rattled the net for one goal and two assists; Tom Bryans carded one goal apiece. Mitch Ramsey carded three assists; George Sharpe and Jim Drewry finished with two assists.

Lindsey-Pavelich got on the scoreboard with goals scored by John Clearwood and Tim Dettloff. Dave Milam picked up assists on both goals while Dave Frankling received an assist on the first.

V-D Roofing won its second game in a row as it skated to a 5-2 win over Ed's Sports. Norm Beasley tallied twice and received two assists; Bob Bowen scored one goal and picked up three assists; Dave Fishwick and Chuck Puckett rounded out the scoring with a goal apiece. Rick Mullen finished the game with three assists while Dan Robert and Paul Briski got assists.

Dave Fiero scored both of Ed's Sports goals while Kaifesh and Phil Neal checked in with assists.

Johnson's Bakery scored twice in the final period to edge Johnson's Carbonic, 2-1. Ron Clemans tallied for one goal and picked up one assist. Mike Zimnicki accounted for the remaining goal with Mike Villmure also getting an assist.

John Jackovich scored the lone Johnson's goal with Roy Johnson getting an assist.

Previous week's results saw Metro Stamp and Harlow Tire skating to a 4-4 tie. Ed Harmon tallied twice for Harlow's while John Auer and Sam Jaffe rounded out the scoring. Gene Taurainen, Layne Cardinal and Tom DiLaura picked up assists.

Joel Layne and Gary Fawkes led Metro Stamp with a goal apiece and an assist. Tom Jones and Mark Santoni rounded out the scoring. Frank Battaglia, John Kunz, Paul Brown and Gary Riegel also were credited with assists.

Glenn captures Lakes Division cage crown

Rockets' winning streak reaches 11 with win over Central

By KEITH DeMOLAY
ANP Special Writer

As the old Carpenter's song says: "We've Only Just Begun," the Rockets of Westland John Glenn began their climb to the Western Lakes Activities basketball title by clinching the Lakes Division championship with a 93-65 victory over Livonia Stevenson and 74-67 victory over a scrappy Walled Lake Central last week.

The double victory lifted the Westlanders to a 13-4 record, 12-1 in the WLAA, and extended their winning streak to 11-games.

But for Gordie Davis and his team, the work has just begun. They have a date with the Western Division winner, either Farmington Harrison or Northville on Feb. 28 before preparing for the Class A District Playoffs scheduled for Plymouth Canton.

Davis and the Rockets, meanwhile, will enjoy the fruits of their labors while getting ready for Livonia Churchill and Plymouth Salem.

"We had some good shot selection," Davis said. "Our free throw shooting is getting better but the real key for us has been good team play."

It wasn't easy Friday night against Central. The Vikings would not quit despite falling behind by as many as 17 points.

The first quarter was almost like watching a tennis match - back and forth. Central took a 3-0 lead but not until it took nearly two minutes for either team to score. But, slowly and surely, Glenn found their shooting touch as Andy Grazulis and Steve Hawley scored six points apiece to take a 14-11 lead by the 51 seconds mark. Grazulis is's free throws made it 16-11, then Greg Bates got loose under the bucket for a lay-up that gave the Rockets an 18-11 lead at the buzzer.

The second quarter was something out of an NBA highlight film as both teams raced up-and-down the floor to the tune of 26-17. But the Rockets provided most of the highlights as Hawley hit four straight shots to give Glenn a 30-15 lead by the 5:46 mark. At halftime, the 6-2 junior guard had 16 points en route to 24 for the game.

But the real highlight came at the 1:05 mark when senior forward Gerry Diete-Spiff slammed one home for a 43-28 lead as the crowd went wild. For Gerry, it was the second time in a week that he had slammed one home, having accomplished it on Tuesday against Stevenson.

It was more of the same in the third quarter as Glenn built a 56-40 lead by quarter's end. Tim Wiseley's free throws made it 50-38 at the 2:09 mark, and the senior forward's hard-driving lay-up at the 0:27 mark made it 54-40. Hawley proved that last week's game winner against North Farmington was no fluke as he hit a shot at the buzzer to make it, 56-40.

When Glenn had built the lead to 67-47 on a Hawley basket at the 4:02 mark, Davis cleared his bench and sent in his two seniors, Bob Beaver and Mark Phillips, in their last home game appearances.

But, through no fault of their own, the Vikings erupted and ran off a 20-6 tear to close the gap to the final 74-67 margin. Kevin Harreld and Rob Wolski led the way as the Viking fans cheered them on.

However, Glenn toughed it out and nailed down the division and the divisional flag.

Earlier in the week, Glenn turned back Stevenson, 93-65, as Hawley scored 30 points and backcourt mate Bates added a career high 16. Dan Liedel came off the bench to score 11.

The Junior Varsity continued their unprecedented season as they raised their record to 16-1 at the expense of Stevenson (63-51) thanks to Kurt Kuban's 24 points. The Rockets also eked out a 44-43 victory over Central as Rod Killingbeck connected on 11-of-14 free throws.

3 starters sidelined, Vikings still bury Ecorse

With three of their players sidelined because of academic ineligibility, Inkster showed no ill signs or effects of the absences as the Vikings destroyed Ecorse, 102-81, Friday night.

"I have nothing but praise for these kids," said Inkster Coach George Thompson, Jr. whose club is now 7-1 in the Suburban Athletic Conference and 13-2 on the season. "Obviously I had some reservations on how our team would respond to the absence of three key players, but to their credit they played exceptionally well."

The game was never close after the first period when Inkster managed to forge a 19-10 lead with Andre Davis showing the way. Davis connected on 16 field goals for a game high 32 points. Davis's supporting cast also looked good as Terrance Wynn fired in 20 points and Jesse Hardy counted 12.

Inkster's main objections came in the form of 6-2 guard Terrance Williams whom Thompson calls "one of the best in the league." Williams kept the Red Raiders in the game with his 29 points.

But, after leading but nine for the first period, Inkster widened the gap by another nine and walked off the floor with a comfortable 46-28 halftime lead. Darryl Green, who stepped in for one of the ineligible players, scored nine points in the first period, getting three steals, while Davis added six. Wynn joined in with 10 points and Andre Hardy collected

Presently, 24 communities make up the PCHA including Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Belleville, Romulus and Van Buren Township. The Authority is governed by a 47-member board of directors who represent each of the member communities.

In the report, the Steering Committee indicated that because the PCHA is a state agency, it is subject to certain constitutional limitations. Among the restrictions cited in the report were the prohibition of the Authority to enter into "joint ventures", raise and invest capital revenues, develop

Board-level policies on marketing and planning issues and allow members to leave the Authority. (Under the state act, a two-thirds vote of the board would be necessary for a member community to leave the authority. The community would also have to repay a commensurate portion of the bond debt. Under the new plan, the two-thirds vote would be eliminated, although the bond repayment clause would remain intact.)

Also termed a restriction by the report was a state agency condition that makes the PCHA subject to the Michigan Open Meetings Act and the Michigan Freedom of Information Act.

These limitations, according to the report, subject the strategic planning decisions of the Authority to premature public disclosure, a condition that could provide an advantage to PCHA competitors.

With these limitations, the report went on, the Authority would lose money from operations by 1989 if the current trends in decreased admissions and patient days continue. Currently, the PCHA has abundant cash reserves — $56,400,000 as of June 30, 1985 — and little debt — $23,500,000 as of June 30, 1985.

According to Camps, a lack of admissions has plagued the hospital group at both Beyer Memorial and Seaway. With the new plan in place, Camps feels, new health care offerings could make the facilities again viable. With it, however, the Authority would enter a deficit financial situation.

Under the new plan, the organization would be governed by two managing bodies. The current 47-member board would incorporate and become the initial corporate board. This board would, in turn, elect a board of directors consisting of no more than 15 members who would serve on a voluntary basis. This board could not be made up of more than one-third of the current 47-member PCHA board.

Before the PCHA can be made a private, non-profit organization, however, all bonds used for initial construction must be repaid. This provision was included in the initial state act which stated that the Authority could not sell or otherwise dispose of assets until all bonds were repaid.

In addition to the repayment plan, the PCHA would face a stiff battle with the state attorney general. The attorney general in 1965 stopped a similar dismantling of the PCHA through a permanent injunction in the Ingham County Circuit Court. The attorney general has reportedly expressed some question as to the legality of the current ownership transfer proposal pursuant to Public Act 47.

Sally Wright, one of two sheriffs participating in the canine bomb unit, allows Baba, a four-year-old shepherd, to look for a bomb in a vehicle. Baba and his partner, Bronzy, search aircraft, buildings and luggage when a bomb threat is delivered.

Dogs

The dogs, trained to detect the actual odor of a bomb, follow their trainer's hand as he or she leads them through an area.

Heads bobbing up and down and tails wagging in anticipation—anticipation of the reward that follows rather than the thrill of having located the bomb—the dogs obediently react to the commands issued.

Once finding the practice bomb, as simulated everyday either on aircraft or elsewhere in the airport, the dogs are trained to sit down.

“They could, like narcotics dogs, begin jumping up and down when they find something,” Wright explained. “If they're aggressive, there could be a trigger device that could explode with the slightest movement or sound, if the dogs barked. So we have them just sit to indicate they've found what they're supposed to have found.”

Baba, Wright said, likes his rubber ball as the reward. Bronzy, on the other hand, relies upon a more basic reward—food.

Wright compared a recent incident in England when a narcotics dog, apparently so dedicated to his job, refused to release the handle of a suitcase containing narcotics. Camera crews filming the event, Wright said, photographed the dog literally lifted in the air, still clinging to the suitcase when an attempt was made to move it.

“Our dogs don't overreact,” she reassured. “They find the material, we notify the guys who deactivate the bomb and our job is over.”

One of their frequent runs, although there is little that can be done to prevent it from happening, Wright said, occurs when a passenger on a plane, recognizing that he will be late for a flight, calls the terminal and “reports” a bomb threat.

Nevertheless, the threats are treated as potential hazardous situations, Preston said.

Once on the aircraft, “time is of the essence”. One dog searches the plane, the other the luggage area.

Fortunately, they've located only three bombs outside of an aircraft, Preston said.

The recent terrorist activity abroad has hit close to home, Preston and Wright agree—threats have been on the uprise for the last year.

“In years past, if passengers saw a bag, they didn't become suspicious,” Preston explained. “With the increased activity in terrorism around the world, they become immediately suspicious.”

The fact that the airport handles both domestic and international flights further adds to the urgency of replying promptly to bomb threats, such as the time when a bomb was reported in a casket enroute to Beirut.

The incident was a false alarm but there is no such thing as deliberating about the validity of a claim before a search is made.

Wayne Unistrut is sold to top management executives

In a move that city officials feel will solidify the presence of another Wayne business, top-management executives last month purchased the Wayne-based Unistrut International Corp. from GTE as part of a leverage buyout.

GTE made the announcement last week saying that the local operation no longer fit company long-range goals and a GTE emphasis on telecommunications, lighting products and precision materials. Terms of the sale were not disclosed, however, current speculation has the price tag set at $37 million.

The deal enables an ownership transfer of all Unistrut property, assets and businesses to C.J. Malfese, president of the new privately-owned Unistrut and spearheader of the sale, from GTE, a Stamford, Conn.-based telecommunications firm, according to a statement issued by GTE.

According to Tim Condit, vice-president of manufacturing and engineering and now part owner of Unistrut, GTE announced late in 1984 that it would sell its Wayne operations to an interested party. Unistrut management was one of the interested parties.

Although he would not pinpoint the exact number of executives involved in the new venture, Condit indicated that almost 20 partners were included in the sale. He also reported that no change in operations, employment or size would occur immediately, although a new expansionary policy is being enacted in long-term goals.

“As far as the business of Unistrut, it will be pretty much business as usual. We are fully committed to the Wayne community,” said Condit. “What it does mean to employees is that the company is going to take an expansive posture, we plan to grow—that means more jobs.”

Currently, the firm employs 400 workers in three buildings at the Wayne division with nearly 1,000 others employed in one of several worldwide operations. Headquarters for the firm, which has plants as far away as South Africa and Australia, is centered in downtown Wayne making it the second largest industry in the city.

Sales figures for 1985 were reportedly in excess of $90 million with the 1986 figure expected to surpass the $109 million mark. Although Condit boasted a “reasonably good” profit level for the firm, he declined to disclose earnings for the latest quarter.

The Unistrut product line includes metal framing and building materials as well as movable partition systems and sign supports. Roof structures for airports are also a major output.

City officials were ecstatic at news of the sale, although the move was not a surprise.

City Manager Thomas Daily reported that the city had known about negotiations between GTE and management for almost eight months prior to the finalization of the sale Jan. 31.

“We actually feel real good about it. It gives us the feeling that the company will make an effort to stay in the city,” said Daily.

City council members awarded the company a Certificate of Compliance of Urban Renewal at their meeting Feb. 4. The certificate, according to Daily, was a formality step which indicated that Unistrut had fulfilled the requirements of an urban renewal project through the construction of the world headquarters building on Michigan Avenue.

In a statement sent to council members, City Attorney John McKinney stated that such a certificate would acknowledge historical fact while enabling the property to be sold. A similar request for such a resolution was submitted by Hargrave Brothers but was tabled to a later meeting. The Unistrut certificate was approved, however, in compliance with McKinney's warning that “the Unistrut matter has very restrictive time requirements.”

Daily, however, denied allegations that the city resolution was necessary to complete the company sale.

“It had nothing to do with the sale,” said Daily. “I didn't read the whole thing (but,) it's immaterial.”

Nevertheless, the Unistrut Company made headlines in the summer of 1984 when it asked the city to close Elizabeth Street from Clinton to the Conrail right-of-way. The issue sparked sharp controversy from residents in the area who said that such a move would be inconvenient. Unistrut officials hinted that the move would be necessary to complete a multi-million dollar expansion project that would consolidate three buildings housing the production operations into one. Some rumors at the time also suggested that the company would leave the city if the street closing was not approved.

City council members eventually approved the closing but work on the project never began. Daily concluded that the current sale discussions delayed GTE from starting construction.

Condit, however, indicated that the new owners of the Unistrut Corporation are still considering the $2-to-$4-million expansion project. If deemed feasible by the new owners, construction would begin within 18 months, Condit explained.

DOG LICENSE
All dogs in the City of Romulus must be licensed. This is for your benefit. If your family pet ever slips its leash, this policy could keep your child from being heartbroken. Also, if you are bitten, knowing that the dog is licensed and has had rabies shots can save you from worrying about a painful series of inoculations. The law was designed to benefit all City residents, whether or not they own dogs.

A City dog license costs $5.00 for both male and female dogs. Licenses for spayed and neutered dogs cost only $1.50. A lower license fee for these dogs is intended to help control the rise in the canine population. Senior citizens (age 65 or older) pay only $2.50 or $.75 per license. Proof of rabies vaccination must be presented when applying for a new dog license or renewal. March 1st of every year is the deadline for license renewal. A late fee of $1.50, in addition to the regular fee will be charged after that date.

TO LICENSE YOUR DOG
Bring a rabies vaccination certificate and an affidavit or Veterinary Certificate for spayed female or neutered male dogs, as well as proof of your age, if you qualify for the senior citizen discount, to:
Office of the City Treasurer
Romulus Municipal Building
1111 Wayne Road
Romulus, Michigan

between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. - Monday through Friday. A license will be issued to you at that time. The license tag must be worn by the animal at all times, attached by a collar of leather, iron, copper, brass or other durable material. Puppies must be licensed when they reach six months of age.

PENALTIES
Any person not adhering to any of the regulations outlined in this letter will be in violation of the provisions of the City's Animal Control Ordinance.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION:
Please call the Romulus Animal Control Center at 941-0666 Ext. 245, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. For emergencies after hours, call the Romulus Police Department 941-8400. Minutes of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Romulus, County of Wayne, Michigan (the "Council"), held on February 2, 1986, at 8:00 o'clock p.m., prevailing local time.

PRESENT: Members Banks, Baumann, Bergeron, Block, Lambert, Pennington, Wadsworth

WHEREAS, public notice has been given and a public hearing held on the Resolution of Intent to Amend the Boundaries of the Tax Increment Finance Authority District in accordance with the requirements of Act 450; and

WHEREAS, the land to be added to the Tax Increment Finance Authority has been adversely impacted for residential use and has experienced a decline in property values by virtue of its location under the airport flight path and proximity to I-94; and
